Still Flooding

By Duane Hahnenkamp

Well its not snowing on the first of June, but it sure is raining. Kind of reminded me of the spring of 2008 when it started raining and wouldn't quit. By the time you see this, you may be able to get into your duck blind. The rains have kind of slowed down, but I don't know if it's going to stay this way or not. If it is just a lull before the storms come back, then it will be closer to August before we can start working on our blinds this summer. For every one's sake, I hope its going to dry out soon.

As far as duck country up north goes, North Dakota has gone through some major flooding in April and the rains have continued on throughout May. As long as there is not a drought up there in the next 3 months, (not likely), they should be in for a good hatch this summer. The first reports out of Canada also talk of wet conditions and the rains are delaying the farm planting. Pretty well all the pothole country up north is in good to great shape.

Now as far as our areas go, I had been hoping that the rains would stop soon if we expect any feed in our hunting areas this summer. Truthfully, I am starting to wonder if there is going to be any natural feed in the whole Mississippi Flyway system from Minnesota to New Orleans. Things have to dry out fast if there is to be any feed at all in our areas or even the refuges. Today there are reports that the farm levees over in St. Charles have given away, so there go a lot of the corn fields that I had hoped would hold the ducks for us come fall. A lot of the ducks shot in Calhoun Point are ducks that have been feeding in Missouri across from Grafton and are looking for a water hole on their way back to Swan Lake Refuge. I don't know how far the flood water went into farm land, so I'm not sure how far the negative effect will go or if the farms across from Batchtown were affected. Hopefully, most of the duck clubs will still be able to put some type of duck food in when things dry out, which would help us some. As far as feed in our hunting areas, I pretty well plan on there being a minimal amount of natural feed in the Point, at best.

Over the years I've seen different effects when there is no feed around our areas. In 2008, when flooding prevented any feed up and down the river, we still had ducks and they stayed around. The ducks got into the pattern of flying out to corn fields away from the river to feed, and then return to our areas to water. Then in 2011, the ducks flew on through our areas because high water on the river that left no feed in the refuges and our hunting areas. I believe the difference that year was that most of all the corn fields around had also been plowed under before hunting season because of a super dry fall. All the ducks had to do was look down as they migrated to see nothing but plowed fields instead of corn fields. Say what you want, all of that fall plowing hurt our duck hunting and also the goose hunting that year. Then in 2012, we had that dry spring and dry hot summer. We ended up with tons of feed in Swan Lake Refuge and a record amount of ducks on the refuge that would not come out. A lot of fall plowing could be a big factor again this season, regardless if the ducks stay or move on. So hope for a normal wet fall if you want to shoot mallards this November.

I truthfully believe that the food factor today is more important now than ever. Seems like in the old days a good hatch and water conditions around the area had more to do for a good season or not. I even believe the duck flyways have changed because of more corn being grown on the western prairies. The ducks can virtually fly over one giant corn field from the Canadian border all the way to Texas. There is no need anymore to move east to Iowa or Illinois to find winter corn fields. I also saw very little fall plowing out there. I have been told that they use the stubble to hold moisture and keep down the soil erosion.

Anyway I'm waiting for the flooding to stop so I can go check out my blind. My main fear is that it is an old blind and that it won't make it through the flood. Hopefully, if there is any damage it won't be too bad because I really doubt if I would rebuild a whole blind for 1 year. So good luck to you on your blind still being there and maybe we get a little feed in our areas yet this year.

IDNR Announces Schedule of Waterfowl Blind Site Drawings

*Drawings to be held for public hunting area waterfowl blind sites
IDNR News Release June 11, 2013*

SPRINGFIELD, IL – Waterfowl hunters are encouraged to mark their calendars for upcoming waterfowl hunting blind site random drawings to be held at several public hunting areas in Illinois this summer.

Duck and goose hunters must register in person for waterfowl blind site drawings and must be present at the drawing – held at each location designated below immediately after the registration period – to claim their blind sites. Mail-in registrations are not accepted. Blind allocations are good for one year, except on the Mississippi River Pools, and Meredosia Lake in Morgan and Cass counties, which are good for two.

To participate in a drawing, applicants must present a 2012 or 2013 Illinois hunting or sportsman combination license and a 2012 or 2013 Illinois Migratory Waterfowl Stamp at the time they register, unless exempted by law. Applicants must be at least 16 years old by the date of the drawing.

Applicants needing to purchase new licenses and stamps should do so prior to the drawing. Most blind drawing locations will not have license sales available. Licenses and stamps are available at any DNR Direct license and permit vendor, or through the IDNR website at www.dnr.illinois.gov.

Registrants must also possess a current Illinois Firearm Owner's Identification (FOID) card from the Illinois State Police unless exempted by law. Expired FOID cards are not acceptable. However, applicants will be allowed in the drawing if they present the cashed check from their FOID card application dated at least 30 days before the blind drawing date. Applicants under the age of 21 do not need a FOID card if they are accompanied by an adult who has one.

For those without a FOID card in their possession, law enforcement officers will not be able to validate FOID card status on the day of the drawing.

Also, in order to be an eligible applicant for the drawing, the participant must not at the time of the drawing have his or her hunting privileges suspended or revoked by the IDNR or any other jurisdiction. Out-of-state residents must have a 2012 or 2013 non-resident hunting license for Illinois, a 2012 or 2013 Illinois Migratory Waterfowl Stamp, and a photo I.D.

The schedule for the 2013 blind drawings see <http://dnr.illinois.gov> Press Release Tab.

Additional hunting information and maps on the blind drawing sites can be accessed at http://dnr.state.il.us/lands/landmgt/hunter_fact_sheet/index.htm

Mississippi River F & W Area Registration and Blind Drawing Info

Submitted by Kim B Postlewait IDNR – MRA Site Superintendent

Blind registration was conducted May 15th thru the 24th.

During that time, of the 593 of the builders of the 721 possible builders re-registered. Of the 300 registered blinds, 36 were not re-registered.

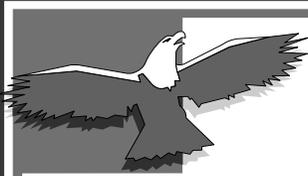

36 blind builder substitutions were filed.

Post registration blind drawing was attended by 75 people drawing for blinds. 21 blinds were issued, 21 cards were drawn that passed or the person had left the draw, and 33 cards remaining unopened.

A total of 21 blinds of the 82 available were issued.

47 new blind builders will be added

ISRA Bulletin

13 June 2013

The recently passed CCW Bill , HB-183 (as amended) contains a provision to allow local governments to retain bans on semi-auto firearms (so called "Assault Weapons Ban"), or to enact new bans within 10 days of HB-183 becoming law. (ie. If signed by the governor or if it passes into law)

As a result of this, ISRA has received word of several communities holding special city council meetings, or adding items to their agenda to consider this. In towns that never had such a ban in their ordinances before or never felt the need for it, some municipal leaders suddenly feel compelled, spurred to action by messages sent from Lt Gov. Sheila Simon and local representatives.

What's at stake? Your right to defend yourself and your family with effective tools, as the firearm that you already own can be impacted by a nebulous "Assault Weapons Ban". The basic version of this ban usually includes the most popular civilian semi-auto rifle, the AR-15.

It is very important that members stay vigilant of what's going on in their communities with regards to this issue. Please call the ISRA office or email the ISRA hotline (hotline@isra.org) if you hear about special meetings or agenda items. ISRA can help make sure that your fellow gun owners in your community are made aware so that you can deliver an appropriate message at your city council meetings. ISRA will make resources like talking points and crime stats available to help members deliver an effective message, check for a new webpage soon at:

Illinois State Rifle Association

Since 1903 - Dedicated to Education, Safety Training and Support of Illinois Firearm Owners

INFORMATIONAL ALERT - What's in the CCW Bill?

The concealed carry bill, HB0183 (as amended), which passed through the Senate and House by overwhelming majority, is now waiting for Governor Quinn's signature. Please keep in mind that the Governor has not signed the bill, it is not yet law. He still may Veto the bill, or he may use an Amendatory Veto. Since no one knows what the Governor will do, the synopsis of the bill will not be valid if the Governor vetoes it or uses an Amendatory Veto. Many of you have been asking what the bill contains - below is a brief outline. This synopsis of HB1083 is not legal advice.

Regulations:

- One statewide shall-issue licensing standard.
- With regard to concealed carry licenses, preempts local authority of governments to regulate handguns and ammunition for handguns, including licensing, registration, and transportation.
- With regard to FOID card holders, preempts local governments from regulating the transportation of all firearms and ammunition.
- Not preempted are AWB enacted prior to or within 10 days of the enactment of this legislation - after that date, new AWBs would be preempted. Local governments could still regulate rifles and shotguns, but not handguns.
- Grants "safe haven" protection for people carrying concealed while in their vehicle even in prohibited areas.
- Upon exit from their vehicle, the firearm must be locked in their vehicle. If they wish to lock their firearm in their trunk, it must be unloaded before exiting the vehicle.
- License to be issued by the Illinois State Police.
- $150.00 fee for 5 years.
- Requires 16 hours of training, including range time. Up to 8 hours of credit will be recognized for those who had hunter safety, was honorably discharged from the military, or had other CCW training. At this time, states with shorter training time, such as Utah, may only be credited 4 hours. The administrative rules of what the allowances will be, have not yet been determined.
- Private property owners can post their property prohibiting concealed carry. "Safe haven" still applies to their parking lots.
- Restaurants with 50% or more of their receipts from food, but still serving alcohol, are legal to carry in, but are still subject to private property posting by the owners or operators.
- Law enforcement may object to a person they believe to be a "clear and present danger" to themselves or others. Applicants can appeal that decision to the Concealed Carry Licensing Board.
- The State Police have 180 days from the effective date of this bill to be set up to begin processing applications.
- Within 60 days of the effective date of this bill, the Illinois State Police shall begin approval of firearm training courses and instructors.
- There is no reciprocity, but "safe haven" applies to out of state concealed carry permit holders.

Prohibited Places: remember that "safe haven" applies to most of these places:

- Property under control of an elementary or secondary school
- Pre-school or child care facilities
- Property under control of an officer of the legislative or executive branch of government, except DNR regulated areas where firearms are allowed

- Courthouses
- Libraries
- Airports
- Gaming facilities
- Stadiums, arenas, sporting events
- Amusement parks
- Museums and zoos
- Buildings under the control of local government
- Jails and detention facilities
- Hospitals and mental health facilities
- Mass public transportation
- Bars
- Public gatherings, but walk through is allowed to get to your home, place of business, or vehicle
- Places that have special event liquor licenses
- Any public park, with an exception for walking or bicycle trails, if only a portion of the trail goes through the park. The walkers and bicyclists must stay on the trail
- Colleges and universities and property under their control; they may develop their own rules
- Any area where firearms are prohibited under federal law
- Nuclear facilities ("safe haven" for the parking area does NOT apply)

The United States District Court has extended the June 8th, 2013 deadline for a concealed carry law to July 8th, 2013. Although I think the Governor will take action before that date, we just will have to wait and see what that action is going to be.

Draft Hunt Plan for Two Rivers National Wildlife Refuge Available for Public Comment

USFWS Two Rivers National Wildlife Refuge News Release, June 11, 2013

Brussels, Ill. – Two Rivers National Wildlife Refuge has drafted a Hunting Plan, Environmental Assessment and Compatibility Determination to expand hunting opportunities on the Refuge. The public is invited to comment on the proposed hunting opportunities through June 24.

The Hunting Plan proposes expanding hunting in the Calhoun Division of the refuge to allow migratory game bird hunting on the portion of the division east of the Illinois River Road. This section of the Calhoun Division is already open to hunting upland game and deer. In addition it is proposed that the refuge will open the Clarksville Island Division to allow fall archery hunting for whitetail deer and wild turkey, and spring firearm hunting for wild turkey. Hunting will be allowed in accordance with Illinois state seasons and regulations.

A 30-day comment period will run through July 11, giving Refuge stakeholders and the public an opportunity to review and comment on this draft plan, associated Environmental Assessment and Compatibility Determination. Written comments are welcomed and encouraged, and may be sent by mail to Two Rivers NWR at HC 82 Box 107, Brussels, IL 62052 or email tworivers@fws.gov.

Copies of the documents are available on the Refuge web site at www.fws.gov/refuge/two_rivers. Paper copies are available at the Refuge visitor center. The Refuge's visitor center is located in southern Calhoun County, near the Village of Brussels, and regular office hours are 8 a.m. – 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information, call 618-883-2524.

In Memory of

Otto

By Greg Franke

I recognized Otto from the duck shack and occasional stops at Frank Weishaupt's Shell station where I pumped gas. He always had a smile and a joke. So later it came as quite a shock when the old man began to take me to school on the proper way to kill ducks.

The relationship began in a duck blind. I was a teenage novice hunter that owned a pair of hip boots, enough shells to get me through the day, and not much else. You see this was a flight day on Dixon Pond. Everybody killed ducks and we had been lucky enough to draw a kill-out blind. That fact alone should date this account for anyone over the age of 50. I can't describe my excitement as we arrived at the blind with the wind blowing a gale, ducks everywhere, and shots coming from all directions, or in Otto's words, "sounding like a popcorn popper".

Being a youngster and a bit nimbler than the rest I was quick to jump in the blind and uncase my gun. To this day I remember the breech of my A5 Browning closing after cold fingers stuffed it full of Winchester Duck & Pheasant #4's. Immediately a mallard drake flew cupped over the decoys from left to right twenty yards ahead of the flock. Otto and crew were beginning to load their guns when I made the fatal mistake of standing up and dumping that mallard drake. With that all hell broke loose. The kind old man began administering to me the dressing down of my life. Upon the unforgivable error of not allowing the flock to arrive I was relegated to set on the bench. Otto said I was a rookie and a kid who knew nothing about hunting ducks and would have to pay attention and learn the correct ways and proper blind etiquette. In the mean time I could set on the bench and wait to be told when to stand and shoot with the men. Naturally I cannot repeat everything I was told or referred to as that day. Thank goodness for Otto's rule #1, (what goes on in the blind stays in the blind). Suffice it to say a Marine drill Sergeant had nothing on Otto. I recall at one point after a painful homily, the crux of which exposed the inadequacies of rookie hunters, the Scout Master flashed a slight smile and a wink that I was not supposed to see.

That hunt began a nearly four decade long relationship with a man I called a friend and always wanted to spend time with. No matter whether in a duck blind, playing knock poker at the Snyder's club, building or repairing endless boats, blinds, and decoys, it was always fun.

Otto grew up through the depression and WWII. To say he was conservative with money would have been an understatement. Fishbein, as I routinely called him, was a spend thrift and rarely threw anything away. In fact upon traveling to Batchtown for project work his first stop was never at my door. Otto always passed the house opting for a direct site visit behind the barn to the junk ditch. He was searching for some part or piece to complete his latest project. Rarely did he make a deposit, when doing so he was cautious to set unrecognizable rubble near the edge of the ditch to possibly be repatriated if necessary. The problem with this line of thinking was that what Otto threw away no one would ever want. Shards of glass, half a brick, short pieces of bent angle iron, bolts with striped threads, broken springs, burnt out electric motors, and other materials of unknown origin.

Otto's conservatism carried over to the duck blind and he was somewhat of an incidental hunter. In other words, it was easy to see that killing ducks was secondary. The shells he brought were in many cases from manufacturers no one in the blind had heard of. I recall some paper hulled, orange colored loads from Poland when fired you swore chicken feathers were utilized for wadding. The smell was a dead give away.

Then there were the blind naps taken as he sat straight up on a stool, can of beer in hand perfectly balanced on his knee. The outcome was always the same, a pattern I am sure resulting from his many years in the brew house. The old man would fall dead asleep, snore so loud it rattled the brush on the blind, only to wake up sometime later to immediately lift the un-spilt beer to his lips for a swig.

While hunting ducks obligatory daily walks were paramount. For that reason Otto was not happy in open water blinds. It rendered him a blind prisoner. His lust for walks and exploring the river bottom earned Otto the title 'Salvage Engineer', due to the fact he never once came back to the blind empty handed. The treasures he found where questionable, objects like an old bottle, a toilet seat, maybe a piece of drift wood, were always in tow.

Occupying time between flights was never a problem for Otto. He carved his initials OF in every blind we ever hunted. There was one time when his incessant tinkering came to a head. We rented a hole in the Pleasant Hill bottom late one year. In our haste to erect a duck box little time was slated for interior decoration. Opening day tinker man brought his shotgun and a wooden tool box. For a week we endured periodic pounding, brace and bit drilling, chiseling, and enough hand sawing racket to attract every scaup and merganser in the flyway. After lodging countless complaints we confiscated the entire tool box.

Finally I'm left with a brown envelope full of stories Otto wrote for the Sentry, and 40 years worth of memories, great fun and great memories.

In April Otto Fisher passed away at age 91. There was no wake, funeral, or obit. Few people knew of his passing. This was his wish I am sure.

From the Sentry Archives

Many years ago Otto Fischer wrote these stories for the Sentry ...

You are sitting in your blind watching a flock of mallards circle your decoys, pleading with them on a call and praying not to miss a note. After circling several times, they put their boots on, lock their wings, and head for the opening in your decoys.

There is no way you can truly understand or feel the feeling in your soul at this time unless you have been there.

Pound for pound, every duck I've ever taken has cost me a bundle, but I don't care because it's not how many but how that really counts.

When I was a teenager and hunted ducks on the sandbars of the Mississippi River, it was rather hard to sneak up on ducks in the water or on the bank I would chop me a large willow and hold it in front of me and crawled towards the ducks like an alligator. In Texas, you grab the biggest tumble weed and hide behind it and crawl like an alligator to get a shot.

One day while hunting in our blind, one of my partners said to me: "How come, since you know that I work for Western Cartridge, which makes shotgun shells that are red, you are shooting green shells, which is our competitor?"

I then proceeded to tell him my side of the story. The next time we are in a Tavern and we order a beer, why don't you drink the beer that the brewery I work for makes. That ended the argument.

However, I had one loyal blind partner who said that he was glad that I have finally got a job in a brewery that made good beer because he was getting to really dislike the other beer.

House Panel Approves Landmark Protections for Hunting on Public Land

U. S. Sportsmen's Alliance, Posted on June 14, 2013

Legislation ensuring sportsmen's access to federal lands cleared its first hurdle this week as the House Natural Resources Committee voted 28-15 in favor of H.R. 1825. Known as the Recreational Fishing and Hunting Heritage and Opportunities Act, H.R. 1825 is the most significant legislation protecting sportsmen's access in 16 years.

The bill shuts the door on abusive lawsuits brought by anti-hunting groups aimed at pushing sportsmen and women off federal lands. H.R. 1825 spells out in plain language that fishing, hunting and recreational shooting are legitimate and important activities on National Forests and Bureau of Land Management (BLM) lands. The key provision of the bill is the "Open Until Closed" language, which mandates that U.S. Forest Service and BLM lands are open to hunting, fishing and recreational shooting unless specific steps are taken to close those lands for necessary and demonstrable reasons.

The "Open Until Closed" provision is a "game changer" for the future of hunting, fishing and recreational shooting on public land. The U.S. Sportsmen's Alliance led the charge for similar 1997 legislation that protects sportsmen's access to National Wildlife Refuge land that has resulted in new refuges open to hunting all across America.

"It's high time that Congress put a stop to frivolous lawsuits brought by the anti-hunting lobby and the 'Open Until Closed' language will do just that," said Bill Horn, director of federal affairs for the U.S. Sportsmen's Alliance. "American sportsmen and women are fed up with having to fight lawsuit after lawsuit just to access public lands. We urge Congress to move this critical legislation quickly."

CA Ban on Traditional Ammo May Lead to Ban on All Hunting Ammo

U. S. Sportsmen's Alliance Posted on June 7, 2013

The California Assembly recently passed a ban on traditional ammunition containing lead that may result in a complete ban on all hunting ammunition.

Assembly Bill 711, which would outlaw the use of lead for hunting in California, passed the State Assembly on May 22nd by a vote of 44-21. In a twist that presents a threat to all hunting, passage of AB 711 by the California Senate could stop all hunting with rifles as the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) may consider alternative rifle ammunition as "cop killer bullets" triggering a ban on those as well. Now the bill is in the hands of the State Senate. It's already illegal to use traditional ammunition in Condor Range. If the Senate passes the bill, California would be the first state in the U.S. to take such action.

When coupled with the ban on hunting bears with hounds, passed in 2012, California is undisputed in its claim as the most unfriendly state to hunters in the country. California sportsmen and women should not let this happen without a fight. Senators need to know that there is no justification for a blanket ban on traditional ammunition, and they need to know about the potential ban on all ammo as a result of the actions of the legislature and ATF.

Take Action! California sportsmen and women must contact their State Senators today. Tell them to vote NO on AB 711. To find your Senator's contact information visit the USSA Legislative Action Center

Spring Turkey Harvest Public Lands Site 2013
Submitted by Kent Boyles, IDNR, District Wildlife Biologist

I just wanted to offer some information regarding the Spring 2013 Wild Turkey Harvest at your respective Sites.

I reviewed the Harvest Query website for the results and I have listed last year's harvest also for comparison purposes. Please see the following"

| Site | 2012 | 2013 |
|---------------------------------------|------|------|
| Beaver Dam SP | 1 | 2 |
| Coffeen Lake SFWA | 7 | 10 |
| Horseshoe Lake SP | 3 | 9 |
| Horseshoe Lake SP Island Unit GMC | 20 | 10 |
| Mississippi River Area Calhoun County | 11 | 6 |
| Mississippi River Area Jersey County | 2 | 1 |
| Pere Marquette SP | 14 | 17 |
| Sangchris Lake SP Christian County | 3 | 2 |
| Sangchris Lake SP Sangamon County | 1 | 1 |

I would presume Copperhead Hollow SWA is included with Pere Marquette SP as there is no separate listing. If anyone has any questions, please let me know.
